

Lauren O'Malley - Assistant Principal for Student Services

Dr. Lauren O'Malley has a BA in English and a BS in Secondary Education from Loyola University Chicago as well as a Masters in School Counseling from Concordia University Chicago and a Doctorate in Educational Policy, Organization and Leadership from the University of Illinois Champaign-Urbana.

Lauren began her educational career as an English teacher and spent many years as an educator at Lane Tech College Prep in Chicago. At Lane Tech, Lauren taught a range of English courses, helped found the AP Capstone program, and coached girls basketball. After completing her principal preparation program at the University of Illinois, Lauren served as an Assistant Principal and AP Research teacher at Walter Payton College Prep in Chicago before transitioning to become the school-wide Assessment Coordinator at the University of Chicago Laboratory Schools for the last three years.

When not in school, Lauren and her husband love to spend time with family and friends, try new restaurants, and think of ways to recreate some of their favorite trips overseas with their two young children along for the ride.

Dr. O'Malley is eager to join Glenbrook High School District 225 and build relationships with students, staff, and families. She is excited to bring her experience and grow alongside a wonderful school community.
